

ETHICS TO YOU TOO!™<sup>pending</sup> [Blog#3]

This is my final Blog in celebration this week of Corporate Compliance & Ethics Week. Whether you are in corporate life or not, being compliant and choosing to be ethical is with us daily.

As a member of the International Coaching Federation and the Society of Corporate Compliance & Ethics, I would like to share with you this week a few anagrams I have written.

Ethics is not all about rules. If it were, no one could be ethical – because we are not perfect human beings. Rather, ethics is about values. . . what is important in our lives and how we want to live and work in our communities. As you read these anagrams, perhaps you can think about how you would handle yourself in the situation.

Expect your Team to
Have good
Instincts and Courage to
Serve all members. copyright 06/30/11

Every
Time you alone change what was agreed to, it
Hurts the entire Team who
Is always on time to do the work.
Cost overruns will now occur.
So the next scheduled project is confirmed by your signature only. copyright 09/27/11

Enjoy your day!

“Jo Ann” M. Radja, Career Management Coach & Change Agent